Positive stuff
- Generally positive feeling from the students about the course, mostly 4 and 5 on all questions
- Most students seemed to enjoy the material and style of lecturing
- Podcasts and the style of lecturing mean that students are able to catch up if they miss lectures

Could be improved
- Handwriting has been flagged as a problem, I will see what I can do about this!
- Lots of people asking for complete set of notes to be provided, I prefer at the moment to keep to the current style
- Support classes worked a little bit better than last year but some students still looking for a bit more structure to them.
  = I will try to stick to strict times for work on board vs student work in support classes.
- Some comments on examples sheets/past papers and solutions for both
  = I will be updating level of detail in the solutions to examples sheets for next year
  = I won't be providing full sets of solutions for the exam papers for two reasons: (1) I think that students are better served by attempting questions that they don't have the solution for, and learning how to cope with that; (2) there is a limited number of questions that can be asked given the teaching material so it encourages a style of revising in which you learn by rote, rather than understanding the method and how to apply it in situations you aren't familiar with.
